

Short CV

Dr Michalis Sarlis

Adjunct Lecturer in the Dpt. of Turkish Studies and Modern Asian Studies, NKUA.

<https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Michalis-Sarlis>

<https://scholar.google.com/citations?hl=el&user=gmJmZRAAAAAAJ>

Dr Michalis Sarlis teaches geopolitics with a focus on Turkey and the Middle East. His research interests include the evolution of the political systems in Turkey and the Middle East, the transformation of the state system of the Middle East, intra-state violence and civil conflicts and the foreign policy of Iran. He completed his doctoral thesis at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens and the subject was «Syrian Policy in Lebanon and the Strategic Relationship between Syria and Iran in the New Middle East (2003-2014)». He holds an MSc in Social Anthropology and an MA in Politics and Security from University College London (University of London). He has participated at the international seminar “Analyse des Conflits: Aproche Pluridisciplinaire” (2016) at the University of Toulouse 1 Capitol, at the research program “Repositioning Greece in a Globalizing World” (2014-2016) of the Universities of Athens and Leipzig, as well as at various international conferences and workshops. He has published articles in a number of academic journals and magazines, as well as analyses and opinion articles in news websites. His publications include, among others, the following works and monographs:

Sarlis, M. Iran, Turkey and the Levant. Newcastle: Cambridge Scholars Publishing. (forthcoming)

Sarlis, M. (2021). Syria, Turkey and the Geopolitics of the Middle East System. Athens: Leimon. (in Greek)

Sarlis, M. (2021). “State Borders and Communal Boundaries in Lebanon since Independence”. In R. Pine and V. Konidari (eds.) Borders and Borderlands (pp.128-138). Newcastle: Cambridge Scholars Publishing.

Sarlis M. (2021). Systemic Geopolitics and Anthropogeography of the Middle East. 2021. Athens: Leimon. (in Greek)

(2016). Geopolitics and Geostrategy in Syria. I. Mazis (ed.). Athens: Leimon. (in Greek)