

Dionysios Tompros, Lecturer at the Department of Turkish Studies and Modern Asian Studies of N.K.U.A., carries out research and teaching work on a) Space Geopolitics and b) Geographical Information Systems. He teaches at the Department's Postgraduate Program, and he is senior researcher of the Laboratory of Geocultural Analyses of the Greater Middle East and Turkey.

Among his publications are the following scientific articles and books:

- Development of Space Systems by Turkey and the states of the Wider Middle East – The involvement of Greece and Cyprus. (2017). Athens, Leimon Ed.
- Systemic Geopolitical Analysis and GIS – Applications in the Wider Middle East and Turkey. (2021). Athens, Leimon Ed.
- Space Surveillance Architecture: Issues and Challenges – An Integrated Approach, Journal of Defense Modeling and Simulation (July 2021), doi: 10.1177/15485129211031673.
- Projecting Power in the Greater Middle East by the Emerging Space Powers of the Region, Civitas Gentium 7:2 (2019), pp. 130-152.
- The use of G.S.P. in Geopolitics. Calculating Geopolitical Power in the Greater Middle East, Civitas Gentium 7:1 (2019), pp. 317-327.